Coed Finds She's Not 'For Real'

Beth Ann Nixon, Palos Verdes high school student, discovered today she is fictitious. She plays a minor character in the humorous suspense novel, "Undercover Cat," that the Encino husband-wife team of the Gordons (Mildred and Gordon Gordon) wrote. The forepages to the book carry a note stating unequivocally that all the characters are fictitious. However, her father, James Nixon, 2662 Harbor Sight Dr., Rolling Hills, will swear that she does exist, very definitely and at time very emphatically, no matter what The Gordons and their publishing house may say.

Miss Nixon was not without influence in being cast for a minor role in "Undercover Cat." She and Mrs. Gordon are cousins.

"Undercover Cat," which Walt Disney has bought, is the 12th novel that The Gordons have written. Their books have sold more than eight million copies in 17 countries and six have been filmed.

YWCA Offers Coed Classes In Evenings

The class will meet Thursday evenings and will include instruction in all the modern dance steps, including swing, fox trot, Cha Cha, bossa nova.

In co-operation with the Active-8-ers Square Dance Club, the YWCA will again offer a beginning square dance to 11, beginning tomorrow night.

A "Party Bridge" tournament began last night and will run for eight weeks. Trophies will be given for the three best scores at the end of the eight weeks.

The Torrance Adult Education division had good news for the city's amateur photographers this week.

Beginning tonight, the Adult Education division will offer a new class in photography at North High School. The class will meet once a week at North High during the fall term.

Cliff Brown, photographic director for Marineland of the Pacific, will conduct the classes. He has worked as a news photographer for many years.

The first semester of the class will stress black and white photography, and the spring semester class will emphasize more advanced techniques, color photography, and special effects. Home movie fans are also invited.

The class will meet in room 209 at the North High each Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30. Registration for the class may be completed during the first class session tonight.
